Internet Safety for Parents and Caregivers

Teach your child not to post identifying information on the Internet.

Set a limit for how much time your child can spend online.

Keep the computer in a public room in the house.

Periodically review your child's computer and emails.

You should have your child's password.

Spend time with your child online.

Have your child show you their favorite online websites.

Get to know your child's online friends as you would their real-life friends.

Learn to navigate the web.

Monitor your child's access to the Internet outside the home.

Watch for unexplained changes in your child's behavior.
